- Transforming Campus & Community through USF Engage SF, Director Karin Cotterman, Senior Director Derick Brown and Dresden Smith Literacy Program Coordinator

Karin: Timeless, driven by community identified needs, long term commitment. Transformational vs. transactional, Transformational is longer lasting. Our work is based on relationships started in 2012, launched in 2019. A lot of initiatives within the McCarthy center. Modest pots of money, community projects, that have deepened connections or initiate partnerships. The whole idea within engage, decentralized, I need a lot of people to invest and care about the W.A. (Western Addition) Shoutout to Tamara, Health Fair and the work that Thomas Simpson started years ago. Nolizwe Nondabula. Those relationships are deep and long lasting. Impacts on USF, the transformation, breaking down walls between campus & community.

Dresden: Literacy Program Coordinator, schedule manage and coach undergraduate students. Build capacity for educators, 35 tutors usually have 50 tutors, it's been hard during the pandemic. Partnerships with Prince Hall, Booker T., Cobb and Magic Zone. Still have partnership but not in person. As a program we are really flexible, homework help, math, a little bit of training, we do all subjects, essentially whatever is needed, our teachers work as a technological assistant. It's been particularly helpful during COVID when teachers are managing so much. Breakout rooms, and help with assignments. For preparation literacy training, trauma informed approach and how to work with children. In the wake of 2020, George Floyd, resurgence of BLM, I (Dresden Smith) created a curriculum, white savior and bias that they may have, tutors have learned of anti-racism and cultural humility, we looked at historical . it has been a really important thing and they've been able to identify that they do not know everything, follow the lead of people that have been doing the work for a long time, and come in with an open mind, to continue to learn.

Karin:Questions:

Derrick: Mentorship programs, CBOs reached out "is there a way our young people can connect with USF, youth in the community, so I said let me create a mentorship program. Workshops each month, connect them with youth. From Spring until Fall, mainly be virtual, have a BBQ in the fall, and we want them to know that USF is welcoming, know that we are nearby, support the youth with funding if they want to come to USF. I want them to stay in SF, and work in conjunction with and support the community, that's one program. Another one is Equity Scholars Program with the Biden Institute, we will be training the students, creating workshops, going into the community and learning. Live on campus for 6 weeks, I (Derick Brown) can come back in about a month and give updates. Expanding, I love the influence, and impact our USF students have had on our youth. Been seeing it virtually, but looking forward to seeing it first hand in person, looking forward to that in person.

Karin put 3 questions in the chat:

1. What would you like to see from Engage SF in 5 years
2. What are ways that collaborations or partnerships are working well?
3. What is some constructive criticism that you can give us?
