- o SF Planning - Housing Element, Kimia Haddadan, Senior Housing Policy Planner Community Equity Division.

Shelley Caltagirone & Malena Leon- Farrera

Talking to folks from CBOs in Fillmore, and we want to reach a broad base of folks, will leave information in the chat in hopes to connect again/more. Land acknowledgement. In addition to meeting requirements every 8years, where housing is directed and update for this housing plan, a guiding document. Overview: For this update: our first acknowledgement is we know long institutionalized racism and inequities and disparities, in income: showing slide. Non-white are more likely to experience rent burden where they spent 30% or more of their income on rent. Housing didn't keep up with jobs. The price to own a home in SF skyrocketed in the last couple of decades. At the same time we know that SF is trying to change policy, it requires deeper structural changes, economic inequities and it is a basic human right. Map shows different degrees of exclusion. 1st housing plan, social equity. Higher number of housing targets, state and regional agencies, requirements over 8 year cycles, accommodate 25k housing units, and now that number has tripled to 82k. There are other updates: requires local jurisdictions to bring opportunities to segregated and underserved communities. Address needs especially our communities of color. Currently in second phase of outreach, by early next year for adoption of this plan. Key policy shifts: American Indian, Black, other communities of color, facing housing displacement, mentally ill, seniors, TAY, these groups have intersectionality, very low income households, risked of being unhoused, moderate and middle income families. Cost burdened. A quick overview of policy shift: Vulnerable groups, talks about rights to housing, extremely low and low incomes, expand programs that will bring back space to community those that have been displaced. Higher areas of targeting specific areas. Areas of the city known of higher opportunities, improve life outcome for low income households and generally increasing housing affordability. Questions to think about: What types of housing address need, where should new housing be built? Recognizing right to housing, prioritizing. Increasing rental assistance. Expanding program to bringing back displaced communities. Increasing housing affordability, and access BMR units not just provide them. Showed map: where are the areas being considered. 40k build small to mid-rise, to be distributed by income levels. Showed slide of where they've presented so far. Focus groups, that they have underway. If you are interested in following up after this meeting or outreach please leave contact information and we will follow up with you directly. We will open up to discussion questions and leave them in the chat,. Questions: 1. What would right to return mean for your community? 2. How can we reverse the displacement of black households and Fillmore Residents from San Francisco?

3. How should the City increase access to stable housing for the black community and Fillmore residents?

4. What types of housing would serve your needs?

5. Where should new housing be built? Focus on TAY, intentional and have them apply and secure housing.

Brittany: Some families, at 18 year olds are on their own, so centering them in the planning so that they are able to thrive and not have to worry about housing. To make sure we don't have that conversation 10 years from now about getting them back. If anyone would like to participate and engage more closely in this process, please leave your contact info here or reach out:

Kimia.haddadan@sfgov.org

Betty Self to Everyone: (415) 678-0459. I will be interested to be part of the focus group process. WA Family Resource Center, a Program of Urban Services YMCA SF

Greg: keep up with access to jobs,

Aquil: BALANCE / SF Smart Money Coaching is expanding our financial coaching services to reach more TAY. We just completed an awesome program with Tzu Chi and Soul Seated Journey in the Alice Griffith neighborhood. Also working in a close collaboration with Year Up. Tameeka: there is new housing legislation that support turning church parking lots into housing! OTTP is also hiring for psychotherapists. I shared the job description with Nayansey. I have to head out, but please feel to reach out to me emily.tunnat@ottp-sf.org with any questions or interest!
